85-121/986

Serve Part-Time In The Army Guard, And Your Prospects For The Future Look Twice As Good.

D12.12:

When you join the Army National Guard, you create your own breaks. Because in the Guard, you can qualify for the New GI Bill, which can help you pay for college.

You get hands-on training with space age technology, too. Training that can open up a world of possibilities in the civilian job market.

And you get it all for serving two days a month and two weeks a year.

Develop More Marketable Job Skills.

If you want to get a career off the ground, the Guard is the perfect place to do it.

We offer intense, specialized training in dozens of different career fields—electronics, computer programming, communications and almost every other technical field.

But the best part is, you can take all the skills we teach you in the Guard and put them to work doing a civilian job. Full-time. Right now.

Pay For College By Working Two Days A Month And Two Weeks A Year.

When you enlist in the Guard, you're eligible for $5,000 in tuition assistance, thanks to the New GI Bill.

You can also earn an additional $2,000 enlistment bonus.

Plus, over the course of your 6-year enlistment, you will earn a minimum salary of $11,000.

The bottom line is, the Army National Guard will pay you a minimum of $18,000 that you can put toward your college education.

The Future Starts Today.

To make sure that you get into the career field that you want, and to guarantee that you get the highest possible amount in tuition assistance benefits, contact your Army Guard recruiter.

Get job training, extra income, and an education. And get a head-start on your future, by serving part-time in the Army National Guard.

ARMY
National Guard
Americans At Their Best.

National Guard

Army National Guard

Americans At Their Best.

ARNG 85-121, AUGUST 1986, U.S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 1986 156-336